SOCIAL NARRATIVE

School Tour Visit

Kimbell Art Museum

I am going to visit the Kimbell Art Museum.

I might ride on a big bus.

I will stay with my teacher and classmates.

Inside the museum, I might see art from Africa, the Ancient Americas, Asia, and Europe.

Kimbell Art Museum

The museum has two buildings. This building is called the Kahn Building.

This building is called the Piano Pavilion. I can visit each building to look at art.

When I enter the museum, I might see the security guard. If I have a backpack, food, or drinks, I will need to leave them at the parcel check desk. I will pick them up when I am ready to leave the museum.

A museum educator will welcome our class and help us split into smaller groups for tours. My docent, or tour guide, will meet my group and take us to see the artwork.

I might need to walk up some stairs or ride an elevator to visit some of the art galleries or the auditorium.

Kimbell Art Museum

On our tour, our docent will talk with us about five to seven artworks. They might ask us questions or tell us stories. If I have something to say about the artwork, I can raise my hand and share it with the docent and my group.

There will be security guards in the museum. They wear navy blue jackets and white shirts so that I can find them easily. They are there to help people and to keep the art safe. If I get lost and can't find my group, I can tell one of the security guards.

Lots of people will stop and look at the art in the galleries. I can look at the art, too. I will see some paintings on the walls and some sculptures on pedestals.

I should stay with my group.

I can look at the art with my eyes, but I should not touch it with my hands.

I should stay at least three feet, or an arm's length, away from the art.

I can talk about the art using a quiet voice.

Kimbell Art Museum

My group might go outside to see some sculptures. I can walk through the gravel. I can look at the trees. I can look at the fountains, but I should not touch the water.

If I need a restroom in the Kahn Building, I need to go to the downstairs East Lobby.

I can find restrooms, both individual and family stalls, on both floors of the Piano Pavilion.

Kimbell Art Museum

When the tour is over, my docent will bring us back to the museum entrance. My teacher will let us know when it is time to go. If I checked my bag, I will go back to the parcel check desk to get it back.

Then I will go back to school with my class. I love visiting the Kimbell Art Museum!
